Library Busy As Adult Literacy Center Opens

The Library has partnered with the Crown Point Adult Learning center to provide a location for students that are seeking their HSE and learning English as a second language. On Monday, January 23 The James C. Conlon Community Literacy Center (CCLC) opened at 9:30 a.m. and the Center's first student arrived at 9:35 a.m. It was a busy day as both the Crown Point Adult Learning Center's High School Equivalency (HSE) and English as a Second Language (ESL) programs conducted classes.

The creation of the new location for the center was made possible by winning a grant from the Crown Point Community Foundation's Big Idea grant project last summer.

The purpose of the CCLC is to provide life-changing programs for patrons needing help in developing their personal literacy skills. The room currently will be used by the Crown Point Adult Learning Center, but other literacy organizations will also be encouraged to use the room.

The CCLC is a direct extension of the Crown Point Community Library's Mission Statement, "The Crown Point Community Library is a community center for lifelong discovery."

The library re-purposed the Periodical Room for the James C. Conlon Community Literacy Center and utilized existing space on the 1st floor to create new seating areas for patrons, relocated collections and provided much needed space for specific collections for future growth.

The Big Idea grant also included other outreach initiatives. These initiatives are moving from the planning stages and are beginning to be implemented in ways that are more visible to all library staff and patrons. Here's an overview of the new outreach initiatives:

• Outreach to Literacy Organizations: The Crown Point Community Library partnered with the Friends of the Adult Learning Center to provide dedicated space for the Adult Learning Program.

• Outreach to the Community and Underserved Populations-Mobile Library: The grant also provided funding for a utility van to enhance outreach library services for the Crown Point and Winfield locations. Another facet of the outreach service is to provide "Books in a Box" for day cares, senior centers and other facilities, making books and library resources available to all. As the outreach services continue to roll out, keep an eye out for the Library's new van...it will be hard to miss!

The CCLC is a direct extension of the Crown Point Community Library's Mission Statement, "The Crown Point Community Library is a community center for lifelong discovery."

February is National Library Lovers Month

Find out what is happening at the Crown Point and Winfield Branch Libraries. Search for events by location and audience. Advanced calendar features can remind you about events you like by email and let you share them on Facebook.

Book Lovers Book Exchange

Thursday, February 16 at 3 p.m.

Bring a gift wrapped new or used (in almost new condition) to the library to share with other book lovers. We will play a White Elephant style exchange as we take turns choosing a wrapped book, unwrapping them, and taking turns to “steal” books from others. If you need a source for a good book, don’t forget to check out the Friends of the Library’s on-going book sale in the Internet Cafe for a book that will only cost you $1. Hot chocolate and treats will be served.

Blind Date with a Book

Look for a display, Blind Date with a Book, during February on the first floor of the library. The books will be wrapped with brown paper and have a short description of the plot written on the paper. Patrons may select a book and check it out without unwrapping it in the library. Once you get your “Blind Date” home, open it for a surprise to read at home. Maybe you’ll fall in love with a new book or author this month!

200 Fun Facts About Crown Point

Pick up your copy of “200 Fun Facts About Crown Point To Celebrate” published by the The Crown Point Community Library Indiana Room and Reference Department. It is was created to celebrate Indiana’s Bicentennial and was generously underwritten by the Friends of the Library. This booklet is officially endorsed by the Indiana Bicentennial Commission as a Legacy Project. Come learn about the Hub City and see some unique items that represent our city.

The Indiana Room is on Twitter! Follow @CPCL_INRoom for tweets about history, genealogy, and Crown Point and NWI.

Artist Jon Poulsen demonstrated drawing techniques using sharpie markers at the Teen Maker Space event at the Winfield Branch Library. Teens in grades 6 - 12 were able to create their own sharpie art on their personal items.

NO MANCHES FRIDA, Spanish with subtitles

NO MANCHES FRIDA is the story of Zequi, a recently released bank robber who goes to recover stolen money buried by his ditzy accomplice before going to jail. They return to the site only to find that Frida Kahlo High has built a gymnasium over the loot. To get the money, he poses as a substitute teacher for a school that can't seem to keep any teachers around. Zequi comes in ready to lay down the law but he quickly finds out that life on the inside may have been easier to deal with than a school full of wild and rebellious teenagers.

The Silent Language of Love: Learn to Flirt without Saying a Word!

Monday, February 13 at 6 p.m.

Presented by Heather Harder, PhD

Registration Required; online or call 306-4593.

Communication is the key to success in every relationship. Yet, amazingly, as little as 3% of your message is communicated by what you say, and the remaining 97% is determined by what your body does as you are saying it. Even on the phone 80% of your message is conveyed nonverbally. This silent language is the powerful hidden communicator which supports or negates your verbal message, and the body never lies. In addition to providing clues about your integrity and honesty, your body language also communicates your trustworthiness, likeability, authority and power. This action packed participatory workshop will transform your relationships—without saying a word. It will help to increase the romantic spark in your existing relationships or open the door to new ones as you learn to flirt and nonverbally communicate your invitation to new people and opportunities in your life (this can be especially difficult for shy or for people reentering the courtship culture.) Join us and learn the Silent Language of Love. Do you know what you are saying?

Heather Harder, PhD is a leading authority and an award winning university professor, professional speaker, consultant, business leader, and activist. For more information please contact her at 219-662-7248 or email at heather@heatherharder.com

Mind Mastery, Mindfulness, and Meditation: Finding Calm in the Midst of Chaos

Tuesday, February 21 at 6 p.m.

Presented by Heather Harder, PhD

Registration Required; online or call 306-4593.

In the hustle and bustle of a high-tech, fast-paced world, meditation has proven to quiet and focus your mind, calm your nerves, and restore your sense of peace and well-being. With meditative practices you can find calm in the midst of chaos. Even 5 minutes per day can totally shift your world. Whether you are a beginner or advanced practitioner, join us for this meditation experience and live a happier more meaningful life. During the class we will explore different tools and techniques that can calm your mind and empower your life forever.

A few of the Benefits of Mind Mastery, Mindfulness & Meditation:

- Quiets & controls the mind
- Reduces anxiety and aids focus
- Promotes proper breathing and helps attain a deep state of relaxation
- Strengthens your spiritual center
- Aids in sleep and relaxation
- Increases natural energy level and mental clarity
- Grounds your energy for better life balance
- Promotes happiness, peace, and a feeling of well-being
- Lowers stress and neutralizes its harmful effects
- Enhances creativity and intuition
- Relaxes the body and supports the body's natural ability to heal
- Balances emotions and builds emotional resilience
- Extends your life
- And lots, lots more

What You Need to Bring to Class: a bottle of water, a towel/cushion/yoga mat and a reflection journal to record your experiences. Chairs are available for those who prefer to sit.
